Right now, it's been set up to scrape information from one tab of a page. I've been using firebug to keep track of the form data and its generated values. My code so far: import scrapy class ArticleSpider(scrapy.Spider): name = 'article.com' allowed_domains =

["article.com"] start_urls = [''] def parse(self, response): for form in response.xpath('//table[@id="entryForm"]/tbody/tr'): #Title title = form.xpath('td/text()').extract()[1] #Publish Date pub_date = form.xpath('td/text()').extract()[4] yield { 'title' : title, 'pub_date' : pub_date } This successfully pulls information from one tab and generates the following output in the terminal: 2013-04-05 16:53:00 [scrapy] INFO: Scrapy 0.24.4 started (bot: article.com) 2013-04-05 16:53:00 [scrapy] DEBUG: Optional features available: ssl, http11 2013-04
